Former MoD official jailed for taking £70k in kickbacks following SFO investigation

12 April, 2024 | News Releases

The Serious Fraud Office (SFO) has secured a 30-month prison sentence and a £123,000 confiscation order for Jeffrey Cook, a former Ministry of Defence (MoD) official. This follows his conviction for misconduct in public office for taking secret payments in exchange for commissioning work from offshore consultants.

An SFO investigation found he received over £70,000 worth of payments and gifts, comprising £44,000 in cash and two cars. Mr Cook received the kickbacks while employed at the MoD and seconded to UK defence contractor Paradigm.

Mr Cook's sentencing caps a complex investigation and prosecution by the UK's leading agency for tackling complex fraud, bribery and corruption, which also saw the successful prosecution of GPT Special Project Management Ltd which pleaded guilty to corruption in 2021 and paid a penalty of nearly £30 million.

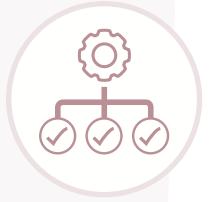

Director of the Serious Fraud Office, Nick Ephgrave QPM, said:

"I am proud of my team for their determination and tenacity in prosecuting a complex case of corruption involving the defence industry.

"Today's sentencing demonstrates the Serious Fraud Office's ability to hold individuals to account, particularly when their actions undermine trust in our institutions."

Films on Financial Crime

To understand how financial crime impacted the US markets, watch these movies / documentaries. You can also research these events online to find out more.

Enron: Smartest Guys in the Room

A documentary about the Enron corporation, its faulty and corrupt business practices, and how they led to its fall. Great documentary on how Enron was basically a CHEAT machine (California power black outs and deliberate electricity price hikes to make profits) and more shockingly, how they were helped by government (Bush administration, surprised?) and accounting firm Arthur Andersen.

Big Short: Christian Bale, Steve Carrell and Ryan Gosling

In 2006-2007 a group of investors bet against the US mortgage market. In their research, they discover how flawed and corrupt the market is. Movie which retells the great 2008 mortgage backed securities scam but told from the angle of those who knew this would happen. Usually when you know something epically bad will happen, you just short the losers - hence the title!
